

ANARCHY REIGNS IN BERLIN AS SPARTACUS GROUP GAINS GREATER CONTROL OF CITY

Dr. Karl Liebknecht, Leader of Radicals, Everywhere in Evidence.

RIFLE FIRING IS HEARD

Rattle of Machine Guns in Various Parts of the City Reported; Plans
Under Way for Storming Stronghold of Police; Street Demonstration

By Associated Press.
COPENHAGEN, Jan. 7.—Berlin is in a state of complete anarchy and civil war has begun there, according to the Munich correspondent of the Politikon.
His information, he says, is based on telegraphic messages from the German capital.

All the banks are barricaded and a great number of the public buildings are in the hands of the extreme radical group (Spartacus).

Thousands of armed workmen of the Spartacus faction are crowding
the streets and at several points firing has begun. The sound of machine gun fire could be heard from all parts of Berlin.

The dispatch reported the intention of the government to make an effort to storm the building of the police guards later in the day and take possession of all the machine guns and cannon there. Dr. Karl Liebknecht, the Spartacus leader, has been seen here and there about the city, organizing his troops for the final fight, which, the correspondent says, is expected to begin very soon. Hundreds of persons are reported fleeing from the city.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 7.—Adolph Jesse and M. Radetz, leaders of the Bolshevik mission to Germany, are in Berlin assisting Dr. Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg in formulating a Bolshevik revolution, according to a dispatch received here. They are believed to be at the police headquarters, which is the stronghold of the Spartacus.

The Independent Socialists, whose leaders were recently dismissed from the government, are reported to have gone over entirely to the Spartacus group. These two groups have issued announcements declaring that the fight to preserve the revolution must now be fought.

BERLIN, Monday, Jan. 6.—(P. M.)
The Spartacus group is engaged today in a big demonstration against the government. Tens of thousands of followers of Dr. Karl Liebknecht have been parading in Unter den Linden, and the Brandenburg Strasse, and as this dispatch is filed, are returning along Unter den Linden. Up to this time no shots have been fired.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The port of Riga was captured at noon on January 4
by the Bolsheviks, according to a Russian wireless dispatch received here today.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Ruthenian troops have advanced and surrounded Lemberg, which is defended by the Poles, according to a Central News dispatch from Copenhagen quoting advice from Vienna dated Saturday. It is added that the Poles have been driven from Lubachoff, northwest of Lemberg.

In the advance on Lemberg the Ruthenians attacked with 20,000 rifles on a front of 12 miles. All the Polish forces in Lemberg took part in the fighting, including a division made up of Polish women. This division, it is added, suffered severe losses and many of the women were captured.

announced by the West Penn Rail-

ARRESTS FREQUENT

In Trouble 28 Times in Year at Instance of Wife, Ben Pike Says.

Sued by his wife, Mrs. Mattie Pike, 28 years old, for desertion and non-support, Ben Pike of this city this morning testified before court in Uniontown that since their marriage his wife had had him arrested "at least 26 or 28 times." He said that the charges were almost always withdrawn but that he had paid considerable in costs.

Pike testified that his wife "drew out the handle" at every little thing he said. He said that if he even took a drink of liquor with the boys she would have him arrested. Pike's mother said that either she or his father had to pay the fines when he was arrested on charges of his wife.

Mrs. Pike testified that although her husband made $5 a day he did not support her or a child, just over one year old. She said that all he had bought for the child in a year was two small suits, each worth 98 cents.
She said that to keep herself and the baby she was forced to work in a restaurant in this city. Pike claimed that the only reason his wife had to go to work was due to a two months illness suffered by him.

The court ordered that he pay $6.25
a week for the support of the child and furnish $300 bond. He had been in jail awaiting a trial, having been committed by a local alderman.

conservation of it.

The first meeting will be held at 10 o'clock, in Room 311, and is expected that representatives will be present from the public service commission of New York, Ohio, and West retailing his milk to customers if there was going to be any trouble over

it. C. L. Davidson, food administrator for this county, said he did not know what would happen if the ruling was not abided by.

MOVEMENT AFOOT TO BRING FIREMEN'S CONVENTION HERE

Matter of 1919 Gathering Will Be Discussed at Meeting
Here January 18.

MEYERSDALE NOT IN RACE

Is Belief, Owing to Heavy Expenditures in Preparation for Last Summer's Assembly Which Was Called Off at Fuel Administration's Request

According to a persistent rumor Connellsville may go after the convention of the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's association to be held during the coming summer. The 1918 convention, which was to have been held at Meyersdale last August, was cancelled on account of war conditions and at that time no decision as to where the 1919 gathering would be held was made.

It is thought that Meyersdale will not likely want to "throw" the convention this year as the treasury of that organization was rather depleted last August by paying out funds in preparation for the gathering that was never held.

The next place for holding the convention may be brought up at an executive meeting of the firemen's association to be held here on Saturday, January 18, the day previous to the memorial services which will be held in the high school auditorium. It is said that the firemen would like to have the convention here again and that there would not likely be much opposition in the city.

As yet no other city has been mentioned as bidding for the convention, and in all probability if Meyersdale
does not want it this year, Connellsville may offer to take it on. Nothing definite could be learned here in regard to the convention question but it was not absolutely denied.

Plans are going forward for the memorial services of the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's association to be held here on Sunday, January 12, at the high school auditorium. The complete list of names of the men of the organization who have died in the service has not yet been received here, and this is holding up the program.

The annual services, which are generally held at the time of the convention, are being held under the auspices of the local firemen's association at this time as the convention of last August was cancelled.

It is expected there will be about 1,000 delegates from different organizations here.

BULLSKIN TEACHERS WILL ENTER SUIT TO RECOVER SALARIES

Action in Assumpsit Likely to be Filed in Uniontown During the Present Week.

An action in assumpsit will be filed during the week in Uniontown in behalf of the teachers of Bullskin township in their demand for payment of salaries for the time they were idle due to the influenza epidemic. Allorneys D. W. McDonald and H. S.
Dumbauld of Uniontown have been retained as counsel. One of the teachers will appear as plaintiff in the case.

Rev. T. C. Harper of Mount Pleasant and Warden W. Richard, who were named by the teachers to handle the case, were in Uniontown Saturday to interview the attorneys. A verdict in favor of one of the teaching corps will affect all.

It is understood several of the teachers, when the epidemic broke out and there were indications of a prolonged cessation of school work, asked for release and were refused. This will have a bearing on the case.

ration by committee.

There are 184 Republican members of the House and 177 of them were in the caucus.

Mr. Hess of Lancaster presented the young York legislator had tried

NEGRO GUNMAN HELD

Ben Harris, Vanderbilt, Charged With Endangering Life of Local Man.

Ben Harris, colored, of Vanderbilt, was held for court yesterday before Alderman Fred Munk on a charge of firing a gun with intent to kill. The defendant was alleged to have entered the boarding house of Mrs. Jenny E.
Jones, Connellsville, Christmas eve and to have fired a gun and otherwise threatened the life of Sam Washington, colored. Nothing was done at the time on the condition that Harris would not again enter the house. On last Saturday evening he again called at the house, asking for Washington and again threatening to kill him.

Mrs. Jones stated yesterday that on Christmas Eve Harris fired directly at Washington who was standing behind her and that she distinctly heard the bullet pass her ear in spite of the fact that Harris claimed that the gun was not loaded. Harris pleaded guilty to the shooting but vehemently denied threatening Washington's life, saying that he had nothing against Washington.

McADOO GOING TO FRANCE

This is Report Emanating from Paris; To Take Wilson's Place.

PARIS, Jan. 7.—There is a report in Paris that William G. McAdoo will be the man to come to France to take the President's place in the peace delegation after the latter's return home. The possibility of it greatly interests Americans here. Previously it has been taken for granted that Secretary Baker would come, but he has a great task ahead of him getting the Americans home and demobilized. On the other hand Mr. McAdoo is free and, furthermore, knows more than anybody else about the American loans to the Allies and other economic matters bound to be discussed in Paris in the next few months.

FRENCH ARMY'S TREMENDOUS LOSS

3,500,000 soldiers of France, about one-half their entire army have been killed or seriously wounded, according to Andre Tardie, French high commissioner to the United States. This enormous sacrifice for liberty is larger than that of any other country. America owes France a huge debt of gratitude, not only for this, but also for the discovery by her peasants of a perfect remedy for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments which is reported to have alleviated incalculable suffering, prevented many surgical operations and saved thousands of lives the world over. Geo. H. Mayer, for many years leading Chicago chemist, imports the ingredients and sells this remedy in America under the name of "Mayer's Wonderful Remedy." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the intestinal mucus from the intestinal tract and allows the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. A. A. Clarke and druggists everywhere.—Adv.

The total receipts of the office were $24,674.45, of which amount $5,114.00 was turned over to the State. The balance was turned over to the county treasurer.

HERE'S PROOF

A Connelville Citizen Tells of His Experience.

You have a right to doubt statements of people living far away but can you doubt Connelville endorsement?

Read it: W. H. Lowe, 619 Tenth St., N., Connelville, says: "My kidneys caused me a lot of annoyance for about a year. I was bothered constantly by pains in the small of my back and I didn't have any control over the kidney secretions. I tried different remedies but did not get relief. I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box and began taking them. They relieved me at once. This was a few months ago and I haven't had any trouble since."

CARRY THE MACCABEES

The Maccabees was organized in 1878 at London, Ontario, was re-organized in 1883 at Port Huron, Michigan, operating as a current cost assessment order until 1904, when it went to a regular adequate rate basis.

Young Tent, the local organization of the Maccabees, was organized on September 1st, 1898. At the present it has four hundred eighty-six members with one hundred forty-two of that number in the service. Local accumulations are over $11,000.

It has jurisdiction throughout the United States and Canada, with 5,500 local bodies and over 300,000 members, with accumulated assets of over $23,000,000. Has paid out in benefits since organization over $100,000,000 to the beneficiaries of over 68,000 deceased members.

There are few, if any, insurance institutions in this country, Commercial or Fraternal, that provide as safe and complete protection as The Maccabees.

The Maccabees have always been the pioneers in progressive legislation, the first to adopt adequate rates, the first to establish the Old Man's Home and Relief Association.

The Maccabees were the first to provide a special Relief Fund to care for great disasters; the first to provide for payment of all death claims occurring in war without raising the rate on the members affected. In fact, The Maccabees is a prosperous All-American, Home-Protecting Association.

The Maccabees was the first to adopt adequate rates, and is the largest Order in North America doing business on an adequate rate basis. Out of 185 Fraternal Beneficiary Associations in this country, only three can boast of as large a membership as The Maccabees, and none of these are on an adequate rate basis.

Among 132 Commercial or so-called Old Line Insurance Companies, there are only 25 who have greater assets than The Maccabees, and only seven had a larger number of policies in force on January 1, 1918.

The Maccabees have ever been noted for fair dealing, clean, conscientious conservative and progressive leadership.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion.

So called stomach troubles such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache and inability to retain food are probably nine cases out of ten caused by acidity. This excessive action of acid is taking place in the stomach causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.
It disturbs the stomach and causes that full oppressive burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn.
While the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.
To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bismuthated magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. Thus it cleans the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.
An antidote such as bismuthated magnesia which can be obtained from any chemist in either powder or tablet form enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial stimulants. Magnesia comes in several forms so be certain to ask for and take only Bismuthated Magnesia which is especially prepared for the above purpose.—Adv.

FEEDING for MILK in WINTER

Fall Fresh Cows Most Profitable

(National Prime Improvement Service.)

IF FEED (own object) is to produce the greatest quantity of milk of the best quality and at the greatest profit, the evidence is overwhelming that the cows should calve in the autumn months.

home-raised feed, he can buy mixed feed which will give him an increase in output and will make him a substantial profit.

Sometimes fall born calves are looked upon as a necessary evil, but if properly fed, they may be used

Calves born in the fall are easier reared and make better cows than those born in spring or summer.

The cow or heifer calving in the fall needs the most healthy and nutritious feed. It must be able to withstand and while coming into full flow. As it is impossible for many dairymen to pasture their cows they must be brought to the stable and be given the best feed. The feed must be digestible and profitable, rather than the winter feed.

Right! Food is the most important thing to a person. A milk milk substitute prepared identically by the manufacturers of calf milk may probably be used and all milk held or made into butter.

It is important that the feed be proper and perfectly satisfactory. A meal can be fed in skim milk at one third the price of whole milk, the proportion, of course, varying with the location of the dairy in reference to the price of milk.

Calves born in the fall are easier reared and make better cows than those born in spring or summer.

The cow or heifer calving in the fall needs the most healthy and nutritious pasturage just following the strain and while coming into full flow. As it is impossible for many dairymen to pasture their cows they must be brought to the stable and be given the best of feed. As milk has a high winter profitable value in the winter time, a carefully balanced ration must be fed. As a usual thing, the dairymen who has little or no pasture has a small and inadequate feed supply either in stage or other roughage, so he must buy his feed accordingly. It is undoubtedly cheaper to raise as much of his feed as he possibly can, but often when he has no highly profitable when market calves are too expensive a perfect milk substitute prepared specifically by the manufacturers of calf milk may probably be used and all milk sold or made into butter.

The manufacturers state that proper and perfectly satisfactory calf meal can be fed in skim milk at one third the price of whole milk, the proportion, of course, varying with the location of the dairy in reference to the market.

The matter of the successful handling of the dairy herd is discussed clearly in U. S. Farmers Bulletin No. 55.

In actual practice, four fall fresh cows have been found equal to five which calved in the spring, in twenty months' product, and at about four fifths the cost.

STATE READY TO WAGE FIGHT ON SOCIAL DISEASE

Scourge Threatens Commonwealth With Return of Soldiers Is Warning.

DISPENSARIES ARE OPENED

Preparation Made in 30 Population Centers for Battle Against Venereal Troubles; Service Will be Free to Those Who Are Unable to Pay.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 6.—"Keep Pennsylvania Clean" is the slogan adopted by the state department of health for its campaign against social diseases which it intends to push vigorously during 1919. The opening gun in this warfare was sounded today by Dr. B. Franklin Royer, acting commissioner of health, when he issued a specific warning that with the return of the soldiers from overseas the danger of a great scourge of venereal diseases threatens the commonwealth unless the citizens awake to the realization that this important problem of public health must now be handled by civilian communities instead of by Army and Navy authorities.

Dr. Royer announced that with the beginning of the new year the department has 30 genito-urinary dispensaries in full operation in nearly all important towns in the state and several other dispensaries in preparation for opening in the near future.

In addition the department recently adopted regulations requiring physicians to place in the hands of every patient circulars of instruction concerning these diseases. These circulars are supplied without cost and treatment at the various dispensaries is also free of charge to those without funds. The law provides that persons under treatment for social diseases who fail to comply with the instructions set forth in these circulars may be quarantined. Dr. Royer announced that it was the intention of the department to enforce this law to the letter.

"It is our duty to protect and conserve the man power of America," said Dr. Royer, "and we must look into this important health problem squarely in the face."

"The Army has done more than its part in combating venereal diseases and now with the demobilization of more than four million soldiers the responsibility for continuing the fight is transferred to the home communities. Citizens, physicians and the public press must aid us in this fight. The problem has always been a delicate one to handle and discuss but the war has developed a broader and more enlightened opinion regarding the necessity to protect our young men against venereal diseases. This campaign must be largely the dissemination of knowledge. We must explain the nature of the diseases, their causes, how they are contracted and transmitted, their course, and the serious results to which they lead."

SPANISH INFLUENZA MORE DEADLY THAN WAR

Said That Epidemic Cost More Lives Than American Loss in Battle. Danger Not Over, Great Care Necessary to Prevent Further Outbreak.

The appalling ravages of Spanish influenza in this country are perhaps best realized by the statement recently made that more deaths have resulted in little more than a month from this disease than through our whole eighteen months participation in the battles of the European War.

Our greatest danger now, declare authorities, is the great American tendency to forget easily and to believe the peril is over. Competent authorities claim the coming of cold weather is very apt to bring a return of this disease and there should be no let-up throughout the winter months of the following easily observed precautions: remembering that influenza is far more insidious than cold.

Influenza is a crowd disease. Avoid crowds as much as possible. Influenza germs spread when ignorant or careless persons sneeze or cough without using a handkerchief. Cover up each cough or sneeze. Do not spit in the floor, sidewalk, in street cars or public places. Avoid the use of common drinking cups and roller towels in public places. Breathe some reliable germicidal and antiseptic air to destroy the germs that do find lodgment in your nose and throat.

Remember, no water precaution against influenza could be employed in this manner than to get from the nearest drug store a complete Hyonol disinfectant consisting of a bottle of the Pure Oil of Hyonol and a little vapo-menthol hard rubber inhaling device, to which a few drops of the oil are poured. You should carry this inhaler about with you during the day and each half hour or so put it in your mouth and draw deep breaths of its pure, healing germ killing air into the passages of your nose, throat and lungs.

By destroying germs before they actually begin work in your blood, you may make yourself practically immune to infection.

All these suggestions about Spanish influenza are equally true in the prevention of colds, catarrh of nose and throat, bronchitis and even pneumonia. Don't become careless. Do your part. Keep the germs away. You may have yourself a serious illness and the loss of several weeks' work. For sale by A. A. Clarke—Adv.

TAFT PAYS TRIBUTE TO COL. ROOSEVELT; IS DEEPLY SHOCKED

Expressions of Deep Regret at Death Come from Senator Penrose and Others.

By Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 7.—Commuting on the death of Colonel Roosevelt, William H. Taft today said: "I am deeply shocked by the death of Colonel Roosevelt. I saw him in the hospital six weeks ago and he seemed to be very vigorous. He was suffering from rheumatism, but his voice was strong, his personality was as vigorous as ever and his interest in the questions of the day as tense and acute as always."

"I mourn his loss personally and I greatly regret it for the sake of his country."

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7.—Governor-elect William C. Sproul said today: "The passing of Colonel Roosevelt just now is a national calamity. His counsel and influence are needed so much now that his sudden death seems fateful. Not only was he patriotic, but he acted patriotically all the time. He had the courage of his convictions, and was always an influence for good. He stepped forth fair against all the evil winds that blew."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Senator P. C. Knox of Pennsylvania, who was attorney general in President Roosevelt's cabinet from McKinley's death until he resigned to become a United States Senator, said:

"It is a surprise, a shock and a profound personal grief. His life was so abundant, so open and so familiar that observation at this time upon his career as a statesman would be superfluous if not misplaced."

Senator Boise Penrose, a United States senator during all of Colonel Roosevelt's term as President and member of the Republican National committee at that time, said:

"I am profoundly shocked by the death of Colonel Roosevelt. When I saw him last in New York he seemed to be in good health and full of his old time vigor and energy."

"I fully recognize the loss the country and the Republican party have sustained in his death."

TEST KIDNEYS AFTER INFLUENZA

Warning Increase in Kidney and Bladder Disorders Traced to Recent Epidemic.

Influenza is a scourge of health and strength, say doctors. While lasting but a few days and comparatively easy of itself to cure, a brief attack often leaves the kidneys and bladder in a greatly weakened condition. From which recovery, without proper treatment, is slow if not impossible.

If you have had influenza and now have to urinate frequently, getting in and out of bed several times a night or if your urine is dark and cloudy or full of sediment and strong in odor, you should by all means use at once a good safe regulator to clean out the clogged up impurities in your kidneys and get them working right again.

There is a simple, harmless treatment called SOLVAX which is excellent and you can make a very convincing test of it in this way: First, save a sample of your present urine. Then get from A. A. Clarke or any local druggist a small package of Solvax and take a few doses during the day and one before you go to bed. See how much better you sleep—how fine you feel in the morning. After a week's use of Solvax take another sample of urine and compare with the old. Let this simple test and your own eyesight tell the story. Solvax is recommended to wash out kidney and bladder impurities and stop kidney misery before it is too late. It is not at all expensive and any reliable druggist will sell it on a guarantee of money back if in any case it does not bring quick relief.—Adv.

"FOR HUSBANDS ONLY"—A six-part dramatic sensation, with Mildred Harris in a delightful role, is being shown today. This is a big dramatic treat for the entire family. The picture is in a class by itself. Lois Weber has branched out into the broad highway in staging these six reels and produced a picture along new lines and without a borrowed idea. The story is so original you are unable to guess the action ten feet ahead. There isn't one slow moment, and to top it all there is a surprise ending entirely different from what you expected. "For Husbands Only" is a clean play and as an entertainment appeals to all classes. Miss Harris is at her best in the principal role, while the support has been most successfully selected. The direction is flawless. Wonderful artistic sets were designed for the interior of the private theatre of the millionaire where the greater part of the action takes place. Miss Weber engaged the famous Denis-Shawn dancers, the advanced pupils of Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn, to complete the picture. The whole idea and its execution are exquisite. "Caught in the Act," featuring Peggy Hyland, the popular Fox star, will be presented tomorrow.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"EVERYBODY'S GIRL"—A five-part Vitaphone Blue Ribbon production starring Alice Joyce in one of the most delightful love stories of her screen career is being shown today. Miss Joyce never looked more beautiful nor acted with greater naturalness and appeal than as Florence, the little hat trimmer, who is "Everybody's Girl" and the squarest brick in Dust Row until she meets a young man of millions and becomes his girl. The scenario is adapted from the widely read O. Henry story entitled "Brick Dust Row," and none of its charm has been lost in its screening. Florence meets her young men in the park because the parlors of her flat have been sublet and thus earns the name of "Everybody's Girl." She meets a millionaire and each one impressing the other as "different" they fall in love. He saves her life in a fire, but when he learns about her park flirtations their romance appears doomed. Then he finds out he is to blame, for he is the owner of Brick Dust Row, and he promptly makes "Everybody's Girl" his girl. There is plenty of action in the picture and the dramatic situations are many. Tomorrow Bluebird will present Priscilla Dean in "She Hired a Husband." Thursday Madge Evans, the celebrated child actress, will be featured in "The Love Net."

Elegance in Sport Skirts

Whether sport clothes inspired the weavers of silk to make their splendid, new products, or these heavy, proper silks inspired the elegance of sport clothes, is an unanswerable question, but the two things are meant for one another. A name is needed to fit the hats and skirts, made of fine materials in sport styles that are at once very smart and altogether informal. Some one has called hats of this character "veranda hats," since they are quite at home on the club house veranda, but hardly sturdy enough for the links. It is an adequate description of them and might also serve for skirts and coats.

The skirt in the picture above is an example of elegance in sport clothes. It is made of a heavy silk with a large checker-board pattern woven in by alternating squares of plain silk in the others having a crêpe surface. The bold checker-board design compels a plain skirt, and this one hangs straight, with its fullness gathered in at the waist and is finished with a straight belt of the silk, fastening with a large button having a white center in a black ring. Five of these big buttons are set down the side, and a pocket, pointed at the bottom, finishes the brief but snappy story of this classy garment.

If any doubts of the informal character of so rich a skirt lie in the mind, its fair wearer has taken pains to dispel them by wearing a blouse of fine white batiste with it. There is not much to be told of this, except that it depends on the always dependable vengefulness of lace in fascinations and edgings for its dainty and spare decorations. Both the batiste and lace are as fine as silk, and the blouse is beautifully made, and therefore belongs to the same company with this aristocrat in sport skirts, which proclaims itself superior to whims of fashion by being quite plain. This is one of many handsome skirts in silk and in wool, that will enliven the beach and hotel verandas in the sunny South.

A Cheerful Bedroom.

Bedrooms, of all the rooms in the house, should be gay and cheerful, and the short cut to an effect of cheer and sunshine is yellow wall paper. In working out a scheme for a yellow bedroom a blue and yellow chintz could be used at the windows, with the same chintz on some of the furniture, and a plain blue linen on the rest. Lamps made of powder blue vases with yellow lacquer shades done in a Chinese design would emphasize the blue note delightfully and work out the lighting problem in an interesting way. The furniture might be painted gray, and a two-toned gray rug would be very good on the floor.

Greatest Nation Of Wasters Is Reformed By War

THE silver lining of the war cloud was apparent to one man down in New York City long before the signing of the armistice made it visible to all men. And this man saw it from a little different angle.

He was S. W. Straus, New York financier and president of the American Society for Thrift.

"The war has taught us as a people more about thrift than any other one thing which could befall or has befallen us," Straus said in a recent interview. "We have practically doubled, since the war started, the number of families in the United States who have something put by for a rainy day."

"We had been a most wasteful nation up to the beginning of the war. Before war the number of persons who were drifting on without apparent thought or provision for the future was alarming. Now there must be upwards of twenty millions of our people who own Liberty Bonds. They have either had to save to buy them or have to save now, because of contracting to buy them."

Straus defines thrift as submission to discipline, self-imposed. He does not limit its practice to matters of money but urges thrift in time and in health.

"In the present period of reconstruction," he went on, "and in the future, every man, no matter how menial may be his employment, must practice thrift, and every employer must see, first, that conditions are such that his employees can practice thrift and, second, that they do practice it."

Giving up all pleasures and recreations for the sake of saving money is not thrift, according to the Straus view. He says:

"Pleasures which we really enjoy bring us definite returns in increased health and contentment. It is the expenditure of all we have for pleasure—perhaps for pleasure which is not such to us but which is considered the thing by our neighbors—that spells waste and extravagance. We shall never become a nation of tightwads, as the expression goes."

Straus does not believe that the teachings of thrift should be dropped by the government as soon as the Liberty Loan campaign is over next April. He advocates keeping at it, the lessons the war has taught us, and after making a plea for the teaching of thrift in all schools, he concludes:

"Thrift is the very foundation of all individual efficiency and individual efficiency is the foundation of all success."

LET'S FINISH OUR JOB WILL BE PLEA OF U. S. IN APRIL

OFFICIALS BELIEVE COUNTRY WILL RISE TO ITS DUTIES IN FIFTH LIBERTY LOAN DRIVE.

The world at large admits that the United States "started something" when we went into war. The treasury department officials at Washington believe that the United States will be ready and willing to "finish it" when the last three weeks in April roll around.

The last three weeks in April are the weeks tentatively set for the Fifth Liberty Loan campaign. And one of the appeals to be made to the public in the sale of the bonds will be the appeal to finish the job. A committee headed by Guy Emerson, director of the Liberty Loan Committee of the New York district, was appointed at a recent meeting of treasury department representatives from the twelve federal reserve districts and delegated to go over the ideas and views expressed at the conference with an idea of sifting out of them a basis for a sales campaign in Spring.

Two features stood out prominently as obvious and compelling arguments for the purchase of bonds of the Fifth loan. One was the need for finishing the job we have on our hands. The heavy expenses incident to demobilization, return of the boys and whatever reconstruction or world-policing duties may fall to us from the peace table must be met. The proceeds from the Fourth Loan are unavailable for these purposes as they were spent almost as soon as they were raised.

The other feature upon which particular stress is to be laid, in the opinion of the men outlining the plans, is the investment feature. In previous loan campaigns the prospective buyer has been told repeatedly that bonds were a good investment, the best investment, in fact, but in the Fifth Loan this phase of the issue is to be more clearly emphasized. As an investment the bonds will be particularly attractive from the standpoint of safety because the transition from a war to a peace basis in the nation cannot have any other effect on them than to increase their value.

SAMPLE OF RED CROSS WORK

Wounded English Soldier's Mother Made Glad by News of Son in American Hospital.

He sat a little apart from the other men who crowded the receiving station for American Base Hospitals Nos. 23 and 24. There was a cigarette in his mouth and a peaceful smile on his face that brought the American Red Cross searchers to his side with a query.

"Can look as if you're glad to be here; are you really?" she asked. The wounded man grinned joyously.

"You're jolly well right, miss, I've only just come from back of the German lines. 'This is heaven!'"

His name was G. Tully, and he belonged to the British Royal Field Artillery. Three months previously he had been taken prisoner by the Germans and had been held just back of the lines to work on the railroads and ammunition trains.

When the Americans started their offensive near Flanders, he and two other comrades made a dash for the American lines. The Tommies with him fell, mortally wounded by bullets that were meant for Roches. Tully escaped with only a slight wound in the wrist and was sent back to the base with a trainload of American wounded.

The Red Cross searcher at once sent word to the wounded man's mother, in England, that he was safe in an American hospital, and a short time afterward this acknowledgment came back from the British Red Cross:

"We have today forwarded your kind information re G. Tully, G. Tully's mother, who had inquired about him of us for three months without success. We cannot say how grateful we are to you for having taken so much trouble in his case and for being of such material assistance to our inquiry."—From a Red Cross Scrapbook.

HERE ARE TWO SIMPLE HOME-MADE ASH SIFTERS

Ash Sifter Hard to Beat as Money Saver; Easy to Build.

The illustration in the upper right represents a home-made ash sifter made from plain boards and one-half inch mesh cellar window wire. Its measurements are 10x17 inches, and it has an elevation of one foot.

In the center is another view of the same ash sifter. It shows the sifter placed against the ash pit of a heater, with a box in back of it to catch the red-hot coal.

Ashes are drawn from the ash pit with a hoe, as shown in illustration. As they are pulled over the mesh the ashes drop through the sifter and the recovered coal falls into the box. The purpose of this form of sifter is to rid the ashes of coal and reduce work. In the lower illustration is a simple form of ash sifter which can be made with four boards, or a box sawed in half, a broomstick and a piece of one-half inch mesh cellar window wire. This style of sifter is efficient but heats less more dirt than the others.

WAR BROUGHT AN AWAKENING

Change of Heart That Came to Indiana Woman Remarkable in Its Results.

Just outside of one of our Indiana towns is a house which for twenty years has been pointed out to all passersby as a place of curiosity. The woman who lives in it was fitted by her betrothed more than twenty years ago. Angry at all men, she had this house built several rods from the road and there, with a maid, established her home. No man was ever permitted to enter that domain. The woman never left the yard because she was determined never again to look on any man, since they were all "alike and unfaithful to any one or anything," as she said.

But still she read the newspapers. They were her only way of communicating with the world.

A few weeks ago people were surprised by seeing this woman come to its main street. They wondered and wondered until the woman herself told of the attraction which had brought her from her seclusion. She had come to see the soldier boys leave. The newspapers had told her stories of a new race of men—young men who above all other qualities, were true to their country—true enough to die for it.

She saw them leave. And then she went to the Red Cross headquarters and got yarn to knit socks to send to them. Now she is helping keep the booths in which Thrift stamps and Liberty bonds are being sold.—Indianapolis News.

Kate said little as we ate, or as we sat together in the shabby, great room after supper, but she seemed to enjoy my talk and I went into the details of my personal history.

The look on her face, even while I was speaking, indicated that her thoughts wandered, restlessly, in the gloomy desert of her past. I thought of that gay, birdlike youth of hers of which the old man with the scythe had told me, and wondered. As I was thinking of this there came a cry from the aged squire no loud and doleful that it startled me and I turned and looked toward the open door.

Kate rose and came to my side and leaned toward my ear whispering: "It is my father. He is always thinking of when I was a girl. He wants me."

She bade me good night and left the room. Doubtless it was the outraged, departed spirit of that golden time which was haunting the old squire. A Bible lay on the table near me and I sat reading it for an hour or so. A tall clock in a corner solemnly tolled the hour of nine. In came the tall woman and asked me in the language of the Irish:

"Would you like to go to bed?" "Yes, I am tired."

She took a candle and led me up a broad oaken stairway and into a room of the most generous proportions. A big four-post bedstead, draped in white, stood against a wall. The bed, sheeted in old linen, had quilted covers. The room was noticeably clean; its furniture of old mahogany and its carpet comparatively unwarped.

When I undressed I dreaded to put out the candle. For the first time in years I had a kind of child-fear of the night. But I went to bed at last and slept rather fitfully, waking often when the cries of the old squire came flooding through the walls. How I longed for the light of the morning! It came at last and I rose and dressed and went out of doors.

Kate met me at the door when I went back into the house and kissed my cheek and again I heard those lips speak words: "My boy!" I ate my breakfast with her and when I was about to get into my saddle at the door I gave her a hug and, as she tenderly patted my cheek, a smile lighted her countenance so that it seemed to shine upon me. I have never forgotten its serenity and sweetness.

CHAPTER XVII.

I Start in a Long Way.

We reached Canton at six o'clock in the evening of a beautiful summer day. I went at once to call upon the Dunkelbergs and learned from a man at work in the dooryard that they had gone away for the summer. How keen was my disappointment! I went to the tavern and got my supper and then over to Ashery lane to see Michael Hackett and his family. I found the schoolmaster playing his violin.

"Now God be praised—here is Bart!" he exclaimed as he put down his instrument and took my hands in his. "I've heard, my boy, how bravely ye've weathered the capes and I'm proud of ye—that I am!"

I wondered what he meant for a second and then asked: "How go these days with you?"

"Swift as the weaver's shuttle," he answered. "Sit ye down, while I call the family. They're out in the kitchen putting the dishes away. Many hands make light labor."

They came quickly and gathered about me—a noisy, happy group. The younger children kissed me and sat on my knees and gave me the small news of the neighborhood.

How good were the look of those friendly faces and the full-hearted pleasure of the whole family at my coming!

"What a joy for the spare room!" exclaimed the schoolmaster. "Sure I wouldn't wonder if the old bed was dancing on its four legs this very minute."

"I intend to walk up to the hills tonight," I said.

"Up to the hills?" he exclaimed merrily. "Are the hickets lyin' awake thinkin' of ye on the dark road! Try it, boy, and ye'll get a crack with the ruler and an hour after school. Ye must and uncle will be stronger to stand yer comin' with the night's rest upon them. Ye wouldn't be routin' them out o' bed an' they after a hard day with the hayin'! Then, my kind-hearted lad, ye must give a thought to Michael Henry. He's still alive an' stronger than ever—thank God!"

So, although I longed for those most dear to me in the hills, I spent the night with the hickets and the schoolmaster and I sat an hour together after the family had gone to bed.

"How are the Dunkelbergs?" I asked.

"Sunk in the soft embrace o' luxury," he answered. "Grimshaw made him; Grimshaw liked him. He was always ready to lick the boots o' Grimshaw. It turned out that Grimshaw left him an annuity of three thousand dollars, which he can enjoy as long as he observes one condition."

"What is that?"

"He must not let his daughter marry one Barton Baynes, late of the town o' Ballispeen. How is that for spite, my boy? They say it's written down in the will."

I think that he must have seen the flame of color playing on my face, for he quickly added:

"Don't worry, lad. The will o' God is greater than the will o' Grimshaw. He made you two for each other and she will be true to ye, as true as the needle to the north star."

"Do you think so?"

"Sure I do. Didn't she as much as tell me that here in this room—not a week ago? She loves ye, boy, as true as God loves ye, an' she's a girl of a thousand."

"Why did they go away? Was it because I was coming?"

"I think it likely, my fine lad. The man heard o' it some way—perhaps through yer uncle. He's crazy for the money, but he'll get over that. Leave him to me. I've a due course o' instruction ready for my lord o' Dunkelberg."

"I think I shall go and try to find her," I said.

"I am to counsel ye about that," said the schoolmaster. "She's as keen as a briar—the folk! She says, 'Keep away. Don't alarm him, or he'll bundle us off to Europe for two or three years!'"

"So there's the trail ye travel, my boy. It's the one that keeps away. Don't let him think ye've anything up the sleeve o' yer mind. Ah, my lad, I know the heart o' youth! Ye'd like to be parlin' yer arms around her—wouldn't ye, now? Sure, there's time enough! Ye're in the old treadmill o' God—the both o' ye! Ye're here weighed an' tried for the great prize. It's not pleasant, but it's better so. Go on, now, an' do yer best an' what ever comes take it like a man."

A little silence followed. He broke it with these words:

"Ye're done with that business in 'Coleskill, an' I'm glad. Ye didn't know ye were bad' tried there—did ye? Ye've stood it like a man. What will ye be doin' now?"

"I'd like to go to Washington with the senator."

He laughed heartily.

"I was hopin' ye'd say that," he went on. "Well, boy, I think it can be arranged. I'll see the senator as soon as ever he comes an' I believe he'll be glad to know o' yer wishes. I think he's been hopin' like that ye would propose it. Go up to the farm and spend a happy month or two with yer aunt as uncle. It'll do ye good. Ye've been growin' plump down there. Go an' melt it off in the fields!"

A little more talk and we were off to bed with our candles.

Next morning I went down into the main street of the village before leaving for home. I wanted to see how it looked and, to be quite frank, I wanted some of the people of Canton to see how I looked, for my clothes were of the best cloth and cut in the latest fashion. Many stopped me and shook my hand—men and women who had never noticed me before, but there was a quality in their smiles that I didn't quite enjoy. I know now that they thought me a little too grand on the outside. What a stern-voiced lot those Tankees were! "All ain't sold that glitters." How often I had heard that version of the old motto! "Why, you look like the senator when he is just gittin' home from the capital," said Mr. Janison. They were not yet willing to take me at the par of my appearance. I met Betsy Price—one of my schoolmates—on the street. She was very cordial and told me that the Dunkelbergs had gone to Saratoga.

"I got a letter from Sally this mornin'," Betsy went on. "She said that young Mr. Latour was at the same hotel and that he and her father was good friends."

I wonder if she really enjoyed sticking this thorn into my flesh—a thorn which made it difficult for me to follow the advice of the schoolmaster and robbed me of the little peace I might have enjoyed. My faith in Sally wavered up and down until it settled at its wonted level and remained there.

It was a perfect summer morning and I enjoyed my walk over the familiar road and up into the hill country. The birds seemed to sing a welcome to me. Men and boys I had known waved their hats in the hayfields and looked at me. There are few pleasures in this world like that of a boy getting home after a long absence.

My heart beat fast when I saw the house and my uncle and Purvis coming in from the twenty-acre lot with a load of hay. Aunt Deed stood on the front steps looking down the road. Now and then her waving handkerchief went to her eyes. Uncle Peabody came down the standard off his load and walked toward me.

"Say, stranger, have you seen anything of a feller by the name o' Bart Baynes?" he demanded.

"Have you?" I asked.

"No, sir, I ain't. Gosh a'mighty! Say! what have ye done with that boy o' ourn?"

"What have you done to our house?" I asked again.

"BUILT on an addition," he answered. "That's what I've done to your boy."

"Thunder an' lightning! How you've raised the roof!" he exclaimed as he grabbed my satchel. Dressed like a statesman an' bigger'n a bullmoose. I can't rattle with ye no more. But, say, I'll run ye a race. I can beat ye an' carry the satchel, too."

We ran pell-mell up the lane to the steps like a pair of children.

Aunt Deed did not speak. She just put her arms around me and laid her dear old head upon my breast. Uncle Peabody turned away. Then what a silence! Off in the edge of the wood-land I heard the fairy flute of a wood-quince.

"Purvis, ye drive that load on the floor an' put up the horses," Uncle Peabody shouted in a moment. "If ye don't like it you can hire 'another man. I won't do no more till after dinner. This slave business is played out."

"All right," Purvis answered. "You bet it's all right. I'm for abolition an' I've stood your domineering, nigger-driver ways long enough for one mornin'." He don't like it if you can look for another man."

Aunt Deed and I began to laugh at this good-natured, make-believe scolding of Uncle Peabody and the emotional strain was over. They led me into the house, where a delightful surprise awaited me, for the rooms had been decorated with balesm boughs and sweet ferns. A glowing mass of violets, framed in moss, occupied the center of the table. The house was filled with the odors of the forest, which, as they knew, were dear to me. I had written that they might expect me some time before noon, but I begged them not to meet me in Canton, as I wished to walk home after my long ride. So they were ready for me.

I remember how they felt the cloth on my back and how proudly they surveyed it.

"Couldn't buy them goods 'round these parts," said Uncle Peabody. "Nix on it like 'em—no, sir."

"Fella's looks like the 'batterin' trousers," said Aunt Deed as she felt my coat.

"Ayes, but them butterin' trousers nix what they used to be when they was young and limber," Uncle Peabody remarked. "Seems so they was gettin' the kind o' wrinkled an' bald-headed-like, 'specially where I set down."

"Ayes! Wal I guess a man can't grow old without his pants growin' old, too—ayes!" said Aunt Deed.

"If yer legs are in 'em ev'ry Sunday they ketch it of ye," my uncle answered. "Long sermons are hard on pants, seems to me."

"An't the longer the legs the harder the sermon?" inquired the little squire over the schoolhouse-eyes." Aunt Deed added by way of justifying his complaint. "There wouldn't be so much wear in a ten-mile walk—no."

The chicken pie was baking and the strawberries were ready for the shortcake.

"I've been waitin' since the dew was off 'guth' then berries an' v'lets—ayes!" said Aunt Deed, now busy with her work at the stove.

"Aunt, you look as young as ever," I remarked.

She slapped my arm and said with mock severity:

"Stop that! Wy! You know better 'n me."

How vigorously she stirred the fire then.

"I can't return the compliment—my soul how you've changed—ayes!" she remarked.

"I hope you ain't fit no more, Bart."

"IT HITS THE SPOT"

I can't bear to think of you dyin' at folks an' poundin' of 'em. Don't seem right—no, it don't."

"Why, Aunt Deed, what in the world do you mean?" I asked.

"It's Purvis' brain that does the poundin', I guess," said my uncle. "It's kind o' got the habit. It's a regular beetle brain. To hear him talk ye'd think he an' you could clean out the bull Mexican nation—barrin' accidents. 'By, anybody would suppose that yer enemies go to climbable trees as soon as they see ye comin' an' that you pull the trees up by the roots to git at 'em."

"A certain amount of such devilry is necessary to the comfort of Mr. Purvis," I remarked. "If there is nobody else to take the responsibility for it he assumes it himself. His imagination has an intense craving for blood and violence. It's that type of American who, egged on by the slave power, is hurrying us into trouble with Mexico."

Purvis came in presently with a look in his face which betrayed his knowledge of the fact that all the cobwebs spun by his fancy were now to be brushed away. Still he enjoyed them while they lasted and there was a kind of tacit claim in his manner that they were subjects regarding which no honest man could be expected to tell the truth.

As we ate our dinner they told me that an escaped slave had come into a neighboring county and excited the people with stories of the auction block and of negroes driven like yoked oxen on plantations in South Carolina, whence he had escaped on a steamboat.

"I d'leve I'm goin' to vote for abolition," said Uncle Peabody. "I wonder what Silas Wright will say to that."

"He'll probably advise against it; the time ain't ripe for so great a change," was my answer. "He thinks that the whole matter should be left to the glacial action of time's forces."

Indeed I had spoken the view of the sounder men of the North. The subject died then with dread alarm. But the attitude of Uncle Peabody was significant. The sentiment in favor of a change was growing. It was now to be reckoned with, for the abolition party was said to hold the balance of power in New York and New England and was behaving itself like a bull in a china shop.

After dinner I tried to put on some of my old clothes, but found that they would not cover it, so I hitched my white mare on the spring wagon and drove to the village for my trunk.
